PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Junior Leadership Wilkes-Barre (JLWB) is a transformative personal and professional leadership development program for high school juniors that provides training techniques to advance leadership skills while increasing community awareness and a civic responsibility to affect positive change. The program began in the 1987 school year, and is one of six programs offered by Leadership Wilkes-Barre, whose mission is to develop leaders for the community. JLWB is guided by a Program Director and an Advisory Board that is made up of a cross-section of community leaders and student graduates of the program. The program has the support of 17 Northeastern Pennsylvania high schools, PSEA, local colleges and universities, as well as numerous corporations and individuals throughout the community.

Junior Leadership Wilkes-Barre offers students the opportunity to work with adult leaders in their community through day-long programs held over a nine-month period. These sessions focus on leadership skills, entrepreneurship, communication skills, team development, citizenship/government, media/communications, community issues, community service, and emotional intelligence, among others. This in-depth curriculum acquaints participants with community needs, opportunities, challenges and resources.
